

HUDSON VALLEY CONSTRUCTION CONTRACTORS ENDORSE MOLINARO

Poughkeepsie, NY – The Board of Directors of the Construction Contractors Association (CCA) of the Hudson Valley announced today that they have endorsed Assemblyman Marc Molinaro (R,C,I) for Dutchess County Executive.

“As the leading association of commercial and industrial building contractors in Hudson Valley, we place a priority on supporting candidates that emphasize job creation as the main focus of their campaign platform,” said Alan Seidman, the group’s Executive Director. “Marc’s experience as a public servant at all levels of government will allow our membership to work with a leader who will provide good paying jobs for our local workforce. We are proud to endorse Marc and know that he will be a strong voice for our members”.

Molinaro said that the endorsement was especially meaningful because the CCA of the Hudson Valley is the largest construction group of its kind in the region.

“I am truly honored to receive both this endorsement and the broad based support of the region’s construction contractors. I have been fortunate to have worked closely with many of the group’s members over the years so I know first-hand the critical contribution they make to our local workforce and economy,” Molinaro said. “I will continue to work hard to create the kind of economic environment that will lead to increased investment, sustainable growth and new job creation in Dutchess County.”

The Construction Contractors Association of the Hudson Valley is a 50 year old trade association of commercial and industrial building contractors and construction support services in Delaware, Dutchess, Orange, Ulster, Rockland, Putnam, Sullivan, Columbia and Greene counties. Over the last five decades, CCA members have played a leading role in every major construction project in the Hudson Valley.
