Dutchess County Executive Marcus J. Molinaro met with New York State Comptroller Thomas DiNapoli yesterday along with Dutchess County Legislature Chairman Robert Rolison and County Comptroller Jim Coughlan. Deputy Commissioner of Strategic Planning and Economic Development Ron Hicks also participated in the meeting, which focused on a broad range of issues including pension reform, shared services and workforce initiatives.

County Executive Molinaro said, "Smaller, smarter and more successful government is the key to achieving sustainable economic development and spurring new job growth. We will continue to work with our partners in state government, including Comptroller DiNapoli, to find ways to address the fiscal challenges we all face and rebuild our economy."
